

Friday, August 22, 2008

Roots & Shoots Garden Center, in Burrillville, has been recognized by the Audubon Society of Rhode Island and the Blackstone River Coalition for its innovations to reduce runoff into a nearby tributary of the Blackstone River. This water lily is in a self-contained pond-like enclosure, where the water is constantly recirculated using a low-power pump. This eliminates polluted runoff.

The Providence Journal / Bob Thayer